CLOSING HOURS SEE MUCH BUSINESS

Long Debate Over Numerous Appropriations By The Assembly This Morning Causes Many Roll Calls--Duke Loses His Suit.

Madison, Wis., June 8.—The old school teachers of Wisconsin were favored today by the legislature and may soon be able to retire on pensions after a vigorous struggle by the legislature.

The assembly decided in favor of the establishment of a state teachers' retirement fund by taking $80,000 a year from the general treasury of the state for this purpose.

For the improvement of different state asylums and prisons, $300,000 was appropriated after much debate. The assembly devoted itself today to several long sessions of debates and to many roll calls on the various appropriation bills.

An extra long controversy preceded the approval of the appropriation of $3,000 for the State Dairyman's association, and $1,000 for the Southern Wisconsin Dairyman and Cheese-maker's association.

Senator Hudson's bill to print the new laws in pamphlet form instead of a newspaper supplement form was killed.

Henry C. Duke, a former student of the universities of Wisconsin and Chicago, who was expelled from the latter institution by the faculty and who brought mandamus proceedings for reinstatement, lost his case today.

Judge Lueck holds that discretionary power of state university authorities should not be interfered with in such cases. Otherwise the state educational system would be impaired in discipline and effectiveness.

JUDGES GET SEVERE JOLT FROM BARNES

Newly-Elected Supreme Justice Says Decision of Court in Railroad Case Was Chastity.

Madison, Wis., June 8.—Associate Justice John Barnes, the most recently elected member of the supreme court of Wisconsin, has filed a dissenting opinion in which he hands the majority of the court a severe jolt, suggesting that the court had not understood the case which was filed by Justice Korwin last week. In a controversy between the "Roo" and the Northern Pacific railroad company over a crossing at Superior, the railroad commission decided that the junior road, the "Roo" must pay for the building of the crossing, but that the two roads must bear equally the expense of installing an interlocking plant for public safety, and of maintaining the crossing and safety appliances.

This decision was in full to the court, was sustained in full by the circuit court for Dane county, and when carried to the state supreme court was held up for months and finally modified and affirmed, so that the senior road may recover back from the junior road the cost of installing and maintaining assessed against it. The theory of Justice Korwin and the majority of the court was that to make the senior road pay would be taking its property without due process of law. Justice Barnes, in his dissenting opinion, declares that the majority of the court has founded the power of eminent domain with the police power of the state, that the installation of a safety device is to be ordered under the police power, that the idea that the court for installation and maintenance of the safety device should be first paid by the senior road and then recovered back is foolish, and that the legislature should be notified of anything so childish. He declares that it would be impossible for the senior road to recover in a suit of any kind for the cost of maintenance in the years to come, and therefore the court has made a decision unreasonable and impracticable. "No one can determine," he says, "when the earth will cease to exist, or is wise enough to say that these roads will not be operated for all time."

DAYLIGHT ROBBERY IN SUPERIOR, WIS.

Clever Thieves Secure $600 in Broad Daylight—Police Baffled by Case.

Superior, Wis., June 8.—The police are completely baffled by the latest saloon robbery which pulled off here. It was at Thompson & Woodburg's place and took place in broad daylight.

The bartender was summoned to the toilet room to see what was the matter with the plumbing, which was permitting water to leak all over the floor. The man that called him to the room was the only customer in the place and he went to help fix the leak. Meanwhile he kept up a fluent run of talk and gave plenty of time for a supposed job to be done in the front door, look over the safe and walk out again with $600 of cash in his clothes. He overtook $100 more. The crooks have overlooked a simple thing. That is the committee of normal school re-examiners in the city for the purpose of examining candidates for graduation at the local academy. The class this year is by far the largest ever to be graduated from the Superior normal, numbering 68 in all the classes.

NO PREFERENCE FOR SPANISH WAR VETS

Assembly Refuses to Put Them on Parity With Veterans of Civil War.

Madison, June 8.—An old precedent by which Civil war veterans are given preference in civil service appointments was upheld by the assembly yesterday afternoon. The debate arose over the Lehr bill, which seeks to put veterans with the war with Spain on a plane with the gray-haired fighters for the Union. On Saturday the bill was killed in the assembly, and Monday's debate arose over a motion to reconsider, the motion having been made by Assemblyman Hiram of Milwaukee. Mr. Hiram is a Spanish war veteran.

Speeches against considering veterans of the late unpleasantness as being entitled to favors now granted to veterans of 1861 were made by Messrs. Bray, Ingram, and Whitman, while champions of the youthful veterans were Hambrecht, Ledvina, and LeRoy. Mr. LeRoy made a flourishing speech for the heroes who followed the flag to Jacksonville, while Mr. Bray from permitting sentiment to rule it. Mr. Ingram advised his colleagues that it might be time, a score of years hence, to show special preference to the 1898 veterans, but insisted that there was no earthly reason why these young men should be put on an equal basis with a century ago.

When a roll call was insisted upon by advocates of the bill there was a ludicrous scurry to cover a majority of the members preferring not to go on record. The required number, however, stood out for a roll call, and it was taken as follows:

For the bill: V. H. Cady, Chapple, Clary, George, Hambrecht, Hamill, Harrass, Hall, Ingalls, Kindlin, Laycock, Ledvina, LeRoy, Leuch, McConnell, Ramsey, Rollman, Frank Smith, Simon Smith, Stack, Thomas, Urquhart, and Bancroft—22.

Against the bill: Atwood, Bray, Brockhausen, Dauber, Chinnick, Comstock, Crowell, Busch, Ditch, Doan, Housh, J. R. Cresson, Haight, Ingram, Jones, Kay, Kuhl, Lentz, Nelson, Peterson, Reymold, Roth, Schwalbach, Stearns, Stewart, Towson, Whitford, Weller, Whitman, and Winters—21.

Assemblyman Ingram won a victory in the assembly yesterday afternoon, when he had the Smith bill to appropriate $17,500 for paving streets about the university with asphalt recalled from the committee on engrossment. He then introduced an amendment which quickly passed, providing that this $17,500 did not become available until the city of Madison had paved with asphalt all of State street, a straight distance of nine blocks and university grounds. Dr. Frank Smith favored the amendment.

GOULD DIVORCE SUIT COMES UP

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD GOULD AIR DOMESTIC TROUBLES.

THE TRIAL WILL BE "SPICY"

And Racy As Numerous Charges and Counter Charges Have Been Filed By Both Parties in Suit.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, June 8.—Was there an inherited curse in the millions left by Jay Gould, "the Wizard of Wall Street"? It would certainly seem so from the amount of notoriety and domestic trouble in which the most of his children have already shared since his death.

A year ago this month the family skeleton was rattling its grisly bones in a French divorce court, where the Countess de Castellane, formerly Anna Gould, was suing for separation from her titled husband.

About the time that the courts released the Countess de Castellane from her husband for good and all—leaving her free to marry the notorious Prince Helle de Sagan a few months later—the family infelicities of the Frank Goulds were being aired in the New York press. As in the case of the youngest daughter, Anna, the troubles of the youngest son, Frank, culminated in a divorce. The decree was granted his wife, who was Miss Helen Kelly.

And now, when the ink has scarcely had time to dry on the papers in the Frank Gould case, comes the separation suit brought by Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould against Howard Gould, and the latter's counterclaim for a divorce. The case was called for hearing today before Justice Gorham in Part 3, Special Term, and it is expected the trial will take place without further delay. It will not be a jury trial. Most of the testimony will be offered in the form of depositions taken by both sides.

The matrimonial troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gould have furnished a staple of gossip for several years. The couple have not been living together since their summer of 1906. It was not until nearly a year later, however, that Mrs. Gould brought suit against her husband for limited divorce. Desertion, non-support and cruelty were some of the charges brought by Mrs. Gould.

In answer to the application of his wife for a separation Howard Gould filed a paper covering twenty-eight typewritten pages, in which he set forth many alleged shortcomings of Mrs. Gould, among them intoxication and misbehavior at various times and places, and naming William F. Cady, (Buffalo Bill) as one whose relations with Mrs. Gould were illegal, and also Austin Farnum, the actor, as a person with whom Mrs. Gould was in a familiar, and who, according to the affidavit, met Mrs. Gould in many cities.

Alleged evidence by private detectives is expected to form the bulk of the testimony. It is understood that ever since their first differences arose both the husband and wife have been under the almost constant surveillance of fleets of private detectives. In fact it has long been a custom of some of the Goulds to engage the services of private detectives. This custom has been followed ever since George Gould was bothered by the notorious Zola Nicholas.

The wedded bliss of the Howard Goulds was of but a few years' duration. After an eventful courtship, they were married quietly, in secret, at the Holland House in this city in January, 1898. Mrs. Gould was Katherine Clemmons, a native of California. She was an actress in the same fame, having starred in the West. For a brief period she was the head of a company in New York.

At the time that, notwithstanding the fact that George Gould himself was happily wedded a former actress, Miss Edith Kington, he, as well as the elder sister, Miss Helen Gould, locked with anything but favoring eyes upon Howard Gould's attentions to Miss Clemmons. Almost from the day that Howard Gould met the actress, shortly after her appearance on the stage of the Fifth Avenue Theater, the Gould family expressed disapproval.

Jay Gould's will stipulated that none of his children should marry without the consent and approval of all the others. A forfeiture of half the child's share in the estate was to be the penalty for a marriage without this approval.

This ghost of Jay Gould in the form of his advisory committee appeared in his will promptly put in its appearance when the marriage of Howard Gould and Katherine Clemmons was breached. The protest of George and Helen Gould carried with it the threat to divert about $5,000,000 of Howard's patrimony, according to the provisions of the will. Howard Gould is said to have been quite willing to let the $5,000,000 go and keep Miss Clemmons. At any rate he defied the family protest and married the actress from whom he is now seeking a divorce. The advisory committee, accordingly, as it also did in the case of the present Princess de Sagan, and let Howard keep all his inheritance.

Confederates Holding Reunion in Memphis—G. A. R. Encampment at Fort Dodge, Ia.

Memphis, Tenn., June 8.—The Union theater was crowded from pit to dome when the nineteenth annual reunion of United Confederate Veterans was called to order at 10 o'clock this morning by Major-General J. H. McDowell, commanding the Tennessee division. A great display of enthusiasm marked the opening of the gathering and rounds of cheers greeted the general officers and other veterans as they took their seats on the stage, which was banked with flowers and gayly decorated with flags and bunting.

Following the invocation, Governor Patterson welcomed the veterans to Tennessee, and Mayor Malone spoke for the city of Memphis. The third greeting was extended by Gen. George W. Gordon, who spoke on behalf of the executive committee.

The welcoming addresses were responded to by Gen. Clement A. Evans, the commander-in-chief of the Confederate veterans. Gen. Evans' appearance was the occasion of a great demonstration, in which both the men and women joined.

The roll call and appointment of the usual committees completed the work of the initial session. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the veterans adjourned to listen to the annual reunion, which was an eloquent and touching tribute to the men who wore the gray. It was followed by an address delivered by Col. Lewis Ginn, of New Orleans, at Fort Dodge.

NO QUIETUS YET ON WALRATH BAR

COUNCIL LAST EVENING AGAIN
DEFERRED ACTION.

POLICE PAY IN STATU QUO

Recommendation to Raise Salaries of Patrolmen Laid on Table—$15 L. icense Fee For Junk Dealers.

There being some question as to whether or not further action by the council in this matter to annul Mrs. Margaret Walrath's liquor license is temporarily suspended by the writ of injunction, the council last evening deferred action on the matter. The council also deferred action on the recommendation to raise the salaries of patrolmen, which was laid on the table. The council also deferred action on the recommendation to raise the license fee for junk dealers, which was also laid on the table.

Matters of Finance.
The finance committee's report on bills was adopted. Mayor Carle was authorized by an order to borrow $700 and place the same to the credit of the general fund. In accordance with the recommendations of the street assessment committee, orders were passed instructing the city clerk to draw on the treasurer as follows: for $300 payable to the People's Construction company from the main outlet sewer fund in partial settlement for work done to date; for $102.22 payable from the general fund, and $401.56 payable from Sewer District No. 14 fund to the Chicago Drainage Construction company in full settlement for work ordered in 1908; and for $228.58 payable to J. P. Grossman from the general fund in full settlement for the construction of cement curb and gutters around the park at the intersection of Prospect avenue, Fourth and Fifth avenues.

No Raise for Patrolmen.
Chairman Richardson of the police committee, to whom were referred Chief Appleby's recommendations that the salaries of patrolmen be raised from $80 to $70 a month, reported unfavorably, with the parenthetical remark that there was no money in the treasury, and the matter was so disposed of without a dissenting voice. Aldermen Brown and Dulin were absent from the session.

Chief Appleby's report for May showed that 102 arrests were made for the following offenses: Inebriety, 2; larceny of house of ill-fame, 2; larceny, 2; drunkenness, 90. Of the number, 47 were taken to court and 55 discharged. Arrests were credited as follows: Appleby 20, Brown 15, Panning 12, Morrissey 20, Champion 5, Mason 27, and Sam Brown 6.

A notification was received from the fire and police commission, signed by C. C. MacLean, as secretary, to the effect that Chief Appleby's appointment of Sam Brown as regular patrolman had been confirmed at a meeting of the board held on May 26, 1909. Pending the outcome of the John Brown vs. Appleby contest, Patrolman Sam Brown was appointed by the mayor as a special officer for successive periods of 90 days. The notification also chronicled the fact that the appointment of Julius Totzian, Jr., as a fire department callman had been confirmed.

Mayor Carle had expected to appoint the member of the fire and police commission who is to succeed Colin C. MacLean, deceased, but stated in private that he had not yet found just the man he wanted. Mr. MacLean's successor will have to be a democrat and the appointment will undoubtedly be announced at the next meeting.

Junk License Compromise.

An ordinance so amending the original junk dealers' regulatory measure as to decrease the license fee from $25 to $15 was introduced by Ald. Kimball, given its first and second readings, and held over until the next meeting for final action. The junk men asked that the fee be reduced to $10. The Cincinnati Construction Co.'s acceptance of its franchise to lay tracks for an interurban line within the corporate limits of Janesville was found in due form and approved.

In order that committees may not lose sight of the numerous matters referred to them at council meetings, the city clerk will hereafter present the chairmen with copies of the orders passed. A measure containing instructions to this effect was introduced by Ald. Buchholz and favorably acted upon.

Where streets have been ordered improved by the laying of cement gutters and curbing, there has been some question in the past as to the right of property-owners, prior to the letting of the contracts, to themselves make the said improvements. This privilege was formerly conferred by a measure introduced by Ald. Evans and the city engineer was instructed to furnish grade lines when requested to do so by the proper parties. The measure was passed without opposition.

Highway Improvements.

A resolution ordering the improvement of North First street from N.

Main to Wisconsin street with gutters and curbing and directing the street assessment committee to view the premises and assess the benefits and damages was introduced and passed. The street commissioner was directed to repair McKey Boulevard from the St. Paul tracks to the Jackson street bridge under direction of the aldermen of the Third ward; and to clean all public alleys in the city.

William Book was awarded the contract to sprinkle the street in front of the Garfield school at 50 cents a week and J. J. Murphy's offer to sprinkle on the north and east side of the Jefferson school at $10 for the season was accepted.

On request of Chairman Scott, the lighting committee was granted further time for the consideration of a proposition to place a 50-candle-power light at the corner of Hickory and Glen streets.

Sewers and Service Pipes.
The city engineer was directed to prepare and file plans and specifications showing the location, size, and quality of material needed for service pipes from the water, gas, and sewer mains on Washington street, from Racine street to Mineral Point avenue, and on Madison street, from Tavine to N. Jackson street. Plans for service pipes on North High street, from Race to Madison street, were submitted by that official, approved, and the work ordered done at the cost of the property owners.

Sidewalks.
Directions were given that notices be served on the owner of lot 5, Lawrence subdivision, to build a standard walk on Hickory street; and on the owner of lot 15 in the Pease addition to build a standard walk on Caroline street.

Owners of property on the east side of Caroline street, from Hyatt to Walker street, were given permission to construct walks four feet wide. W. J. Hill's proposal to build standard cement walks for the city at 72 cents a square yard and make extra excavations for 40 cents per cubic yard was accepted and the contract closed. B. P. Grossman made a similar bid but neglected to include any figures for extra work.

A protest against the construction of the new walks ordered on Prairie avenue was laid on the table. Ald. Scott voting against the motion.

The city engineer was directed to file sidewalk grades for the west side of Jackson street, from Dodge to Pleasant street, and for the north side of Pleasant street, from Jackson to High street.

Street Commissioner Watson was directed to build brick crosswalks across Myrtle street, on the north side of Olive street; across Maple Court on the east side of Washington street; across North Main on the west side of Fifth street; across North street on the east side of Park avenue; across Oak street on the east side of S. Jackson street; across Fifth street on the west side of N. Main; and across Walker street on the south side of Yuba street. He was also directed to repair the apron at the intersection of S. Academy and School streets.

Miscellaneous Business.

Plans of the Bennett, Conant, and Sharon subdivisions were submitted by the city engineer and adopted. Further time was granted to the fire and water committee for the consideration of a petition from C. W. Ferguson and other owners of property on North River street, asking that the water company be required to extend its mains from the Crook Brown engineering company plant to Madison street.

Michael McCarthy was granted permission to shingle a building located within the fire limits, at the intersection of W. Milwaukee and Marlon streets in the First ward.

A petition from Chris. Zanis for permission to operate a shoe-shine stand in the alley between the F. D. Kimball and T. P. Burns' stores was laid on the table.

Departmental Reports.

The report of the board of education showed that orders totaling $5,015.53 were drawn in the month of May. The municipal court accounts showed that fees, fines, and penalties amounting to $72.40 were collected during the same period.

TIM O'Rourke MISSED DEATH
BY VERY NARROW MARGIN

He was about to cross the track when he saw the Chicago passenger approaching and becoming confused, he stopped directly in front of the engine. The engineer applied the brakes and slowly up the train enough to give O'Rourke a chance to perceive his perilous position and get out of the way, not a second too soon.

HAS DUEL WITH BURGLAR.

Gen. Funston and Intruder Exchange Shots Without Result.

Leavenworth, Kan., June 8.—Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston, commandant of the army service schools at Fort Leavenworth, engaged in a revolver fight with a supposed burglar in his quarters at the post. The man escaped and Gen. Funston was unhurt.

Gen. Funston had been in bed an hour when a closet door opened and a man stepped forth. The general saw him and reached under his pillow for a revolver. The intruder saw the motion and fired. The bullet pierced the mattress near the general, who leaped to his feet. He turned on the lights and fired three shots as the man fled.

"I believe he was a burglar," said Gen. Funston, "waiting until I was asleep to rifle my pockets."

AIR RECORD IS NOW BROKEN

BALLOON INDIANA, IN DISTANCE
RACE, SAILS MORE THAN 44 HOURS.

MAY HAVE TOUCHED EARTH

Pilot Fisher Will Be Disqualified If a
Report of His Landing Is True—
Alabama Man Shoots at the New York.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 8.—The American endurance record for balloons probably has been broken by the Indiana, the former mark of 44 hours having been smashed by the aerial craft last to land in the race which started here.

Starting in the national distance race of the Aero club of America, from this city Saturday afternoon, two reports have been received from the Indiana. The first one was that it had touched the earth in Tennessee and had taken on water and proceeded toward the south. If this be true, the balloon is disqualified under the rules of the International Aero-nautic Federation.

First Report Is Denied.
A second dispatch, received in this city and signed by the pilot, Carl Fisher, and the aide, G. L. Bumbaugh, has stated that they dropped down near enough to earth to let down a line and draw up a bucket of water, thereafter rising for further travel. Under the latter conditions the Indiana has not disqualified and has broken the endurance record.

It is not possible, according to available information, that the Indiana has broken the distance record of 862 miles, for it was traveling due south, and would come to the Gulf coast almost a hundred miles short of the record established by the German balloon Pommern in the International race last year for the James Gordon Bennett trophy, starting from St. Louis and landing at Asbury Park, N. J.

Where the Balloons Landed.
The last of the six balloons entered in the national distance race from which a definite landing report has been received is the St. Louis III, which dropped at Koko, Tenn., having covered about 340 miles. A. B. Lambert was the pilot and H. E. Honeywell the aid. The other balloons landed as follows, covering the following approximate distances:

The New York, A. Holland Forbes, pilot, landed at Ogdensburg, N.Y., covering 375 miles in 25 hours and 10 minutes. The University City of St. Louis (traveling 330 miles), landing at Blanche, Tenn.; time, 25 hours and 24 minutes. The Hoosier, Capt. Baldwin, traveled 240 miles, landing at Green River, Tenn.

The Cleveland, landed at Columbus, Ind., 40 miles; two hours, 55 minutes. New York Fired Upon.

Clifford B. Harmon, pilot of the New York, gave the following account of his trip: "The only incident to mar our trip was about ten o'clock Sunday night, as we were passing over the center of Morgan county, Alabama. "Expecting to land in the wilds of Canada, we were loaded with guns, ammunition, heavy shoes and clothing and canned goods.

"In an endeavor to find another air current to carry us higher we decided to throw away about 300 pounds of this stuff.

Commanded to 'Come Down.'
"Not wishing that it should be lost in the folds we descended to within 900 feet of the earth and began distributing it where it would be found—near houses and villages.

"When directly over a very small village, 80 miles north of Birmingham and in the center of Morgan county, a man with a rifle cried: 'Come down here—you, or I will bring you down.'

"We continued our course and he fired three times, one of the bullets striking through the basket. Officers have been sent out from Corinth in an endeavor to arrest the man."

Uncle Sam Says Don't Eat Bleached Flour Bread

The U. S. Government, through its Expert Pure Food Department, has made a ruling that all flour bleached is in direct violation of the National Pure Food Laws, and it has served a general notice that all flour now made after a bleaching process must conform to the Pure Food requirements (be unbleached) or it will not be permitted sold.

The bleaching process is done with peroxide of nitrogen. Thus a low grade and inferior wheat can be used and the difference is not discernible to the ordinary consumer. This practice cannot be construed otherwise than to deceive the public into buying an inferior baking flour.

MARVEL Flour is made, and always has been made, from the highest grade hard wheat, the most perfect grown. It is not bleached, or ever has been, and our mill does not have to alter its method of flour production to comply with the law. Why bake your bread from a flour which the Government says is made in violation of its Pure Food laws? Why not secure a pure and perfect flour, made from a high-grade wheat, milled after the most sanitary and health-giving mode of natural milling?

If you make your own bread, cake and pastry, demand of your grocer MARVEL Flour. If he cannot supply you send us his name and we'll see that he does. If you use baker's bread, ask for bread made from MARVEL Flour. It costs no more and is absolutely pure—of this you may be certain.

Listman Mill Company, La Crosse, Wisconsin

Our record for the purity of our MARVEL Flour is one to be proud of. We stand alone today as the only large mill in the U. S. that has never made a bleached flour.

CUT STOCKING TAX; WOMEN VICTORS

SENATE GRANTS A SMALL REDUCTION ON THE HOUSE RATE.

WARM CLASHES OVER COTTON

Aldrich Classes Beveridge with Democrats—Indiana Senator Replies He Is Working for the People and Not a Party Leader.

Washington, June 8.—The voice of woman has been heard. The automatic senate of the United States has passed the tariff bill. It is all because of the tax on stockings.

Though the victory is not what the women wanted, still it is a victory. After dark, but in the brilliantly lighted senate chamber at last night's session, following a day of hot talk between Senators Aldrich and Beveridge, the upper branch of the nation's congress did this:

Restored the Dingley rates on hosiery, making a reduction of about 20 cents a dozen pairs from the rates adopted by the house which refused to consider the petition signed by thousands of women asking that stockings be placed on the free list.

Increased the rate on cheap cotton gloves to an average of 50 per cent ad valorem.

Having completed the cotton schedule the senate today attacked the woolen provisions of the tariff bill. Further clashes are imminent.

Aldrich and Beveridge Clash. Senator Beveridge having said that he had been inclined to support the recommendations of the finance committee, the admission led the chairman of the committee to say that he had not shown such inclination by his vote. Coming back, the Indiana senator asserted his right to follow his conscience rather than the leadership of any individual.

Senator Dilliver's amendment on mercerization was lost by the unusually close vote of 22 to 38.

It was after this vote that Senator Aldrich found occasion to again challenge the attitude of some of the Republican senators who are contending for lower duties. He charged them with playing the part of brigadier for the Democrats and speaking of Senator Beveridge, declared that he had associated with the Democrats so long that he was adopting their ideas. He characterized Senator Beveridge as the leader of the opposition.

Both Senators Beveridge and Cummins replied, the former asserting that he was simply standing on the Republican platform.

Smith Hops on MacVeagh. Senator Smith of Michigan found occasion to attack the position of Secretary MacVeagh as the mouthpiece of the administration on the tariff situation. He intimated that he did not consider the second member of the president's cabinet a reliable leader on this subject, because of his former Democratic proclivities.

During a defense of his position as a tariff revisionist, Senator Cummins said he had so often been charged with Democrats that such a charge had no terror for him. An intelligent electorate, he said, knew how to discriminate in such matters.

Dilliver Gets a Laugh. Speaking of the large delegations of women which protested against raising the rates on hosiery, Senator Dilliver told how they had descended upon the finance committee after having called first on the speaker of the house.

"Most of the women wore silk hose, too, I suppose?" observed Senator Dilliver.

"I have not investigated as to that," replied Senator Dilliver amid laughter.

House Passes Porto Rican Bill. The house passed the Porto Rican bill without amendment. The bill provides that whenever the legislature shall fail to make the necessary appropriations for the ensuing fiscal year, those for the current year shall be considered as in force and effect.

It also provides that hereafter all reports of an official character shall be made direct to an executive department of the government of the United States to be designated by the president and such department is authorized to take jurisdiction of all matter pertaining to the island possession.

Loss of $300,000 in Destruction of 100 Maine Homes.

Presque Isle, Me., June 8.—The entire northeastern section of this village, comprising the district where were situated the most pretentious residences, was swept by fire last night, a high wind carrying flames and embers from street to street until 100 dwelling houses and the Congregational church, the Masonic hall and several other structures had been reduced to ashes.

The Canadian Pacific railroad station and two large storehouses for potatoes were burned. The total loss is estimated at $300,000.

Counterfeit $10 Bill Is Found.

Washington, June 8.—A deceptive counterfeit $10 national bank note, bearing the portrait of William McKinley, has been discovered and the secret service is trying to trace its origin. The counterfeit is viewed by the officials as one designed with great cleverness. The note is on the Citizens' Central National bank of New York city, of the series of 1902.

In the course of a report on the disinfection of school rooms W. H. Marsh, an English science teacher, asserts that tests made of samples of school room dust showed the number of micro-organisms therein to be from 50,000,000 to 80,000,000 an ounce. On some days as much as one and one-quarter pounds of dust was swept from a room 400 square feet in area, which, on the basis of the figures quoted would yield from 1,000,000,000 to 1,600,000,000 micro-organisms.

I Want Every Farmer in This County to Look Over This Contract...

It shows you how you can buy land on the "CROP PAYMENT PLAN" (no crops, no pay) in Sunny Southern Alberta. You can buy land here with a perpetual water right giving you sufficient water to irrigate whenever your crops need moisture. Land that yielded 600 bushels of wheat from 9 acres.

CONDITIONS GOVERNING LAND SALES ON CROP PAYMENT PLAN

One dollar and fifty cents per acre on non-irrigable lands and two dollars on irrigable lands, is all that is asked as a first payment on lands sold under the crop payment plan, the balance of the purchase money, with interest at six per cent per annum, being paid by delivery to the company each year of a portion of the crop grown on the land purchased. The purchaser undertakes within a year from the date of sale to plow and put in crop at least 50 acres of each 160 acres of the land purchased, and to break a similar area annually thereafter, but may, if he so desires, retain 25 per cent of his holdings for pasture.

The company's development department is in the hands of experts who have made a close study of agricultural conditions in Southern Alberta. Certain conditions, insuring good farming practice, are incorporated in the crop payment contract, which are based on many years' experience and observation; for instance, the company specifies that no breaking shall be done after July 1st. General practice has proven that breaking after this date is not advisable. These conditions protect the interests of the purchaser as much as those of the company. Summer following or cultivation of the land will be accepted in lieu of putting in crop on such land when such summer following or cultivation is necessary.

The company will upon satisfactory title that an applicant for lands under the Crop Payment Plan is financially able to carry out his part of the agreement, and such applicant may now up to four hundred and eighty acres of non-irrigable land and not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres of irrigable land. These areas are ample for farming operations in Southern Alberta.

Suitable buildings must be placed upon such land by the purchaser, who agrees to erect a house worth not less than $350, a barn worth $100, and to sink a good well, unless there is a spring or other natural supply of water on the land. A legal fence must also be erected within one year of purchase. The buildings are required to be insured, and the purchaser must pay all taxes and assessments on his holding.

The following conditions regarding payment for land sold on the crop payment plan show with what ease the lands of the Canadian Pacific Railway may be secured.

One-half of the grain grown upon the land of the purchaser is to be delivered annually to the company, free of charge, at the nearest elevator or on cars at the nearest station, the market price ruling on the day of delivery being allowed by the company. For each ton of sugar beets, alfalfa and timothy produced on this land, one dollar is to be paid by the purchaser.

The purchaser must agree to keep an accurate account of all crops raised on his land, and to render a report to the company by December 1st each year of the quantity of grain, sugar beets, alfalfa and timothy produced during the year.

As soon as the company has realized a sufficient amount to cover all payments due on any land sold on crop payment, title will be issued to the purchaser as provided in the contract.

The Canadian Pacific Ry. owns this land and is selling it to men who will make homes here. It wants this territory settled and is making prices that are exceedingly low. Thousands are taking advantage of this opportunity. You can read all about this wonderful country. Get all literature for the asking.

From Palace to Five Cent Theater, Alphonso Zelaya, Son of the President of Nicaragua, and His Charming Wife, Who Was Formerly a Lady of Virginia.

Washington, D. C.—President Zelaya of Nicaragua may wish that his sturdy son was with him if the war between Nicaragua and her neighbors continues. As a matter of fact his son is conducting a five cent theater in Washington.

The discovery has created no little interest in the youthful romances and experiences of Mrs. Alphonso Zelaya and her husband.

It is a long step from the official residence of Nicaragua to a five cent theater in Washington, and yet such is the fate of President Zelaya's son, it will be remembered that some time ago he left his native land to marry an American girl whom he had met and rather than give her up was forced to seek his own way in the world. He came to Washington, where he became interested in a five cent theater, and while the sturdy son of Nicaragua takes tickets at the door, his charming wife, who was formerly a Lady of Virginia, plays the piano in the theater. The couple are intensely happy in spite of their modest circumstances, and would not for a moment change their mode of life for the grandest palace in the world, if they could not share the palace together.

Young Zelaya possesses a striking and attractive personality. He has picked up American ways rapidly and is well liked by those with whom he has come in contact.

For Rosy-Cheeks &
Ruddy Health

When the children call for coffee or tea, or when they want a hot drink, or something before going to school, give them Bonano, the new hot fruit drink made from the meat of bananas. It will add to the roses in their cheeks and put rich red blood into their veins. A cup of Bonano before they go to bed will make them sleep like tops and wake happy and cheerful in the morning.

And Bonano is best for "grown-ups," too. It makes clear skin and bright eyes, sound digestion and a clear head, gives you "snap" and "go." Bonano is made from varieties of luscious bananas, fully ripened in the sunshine of the tropics, peeled and dried, then granulated, roasted and blended into a mixture which makes a most delicious, fragrant beverage, with a fruity flavor and nourishment all its own. Bonano is the drink for morning, noon and night—a drink that is always palatable, nerve-bracing and satisfying. It produces vigor, health and strong nerves—the feeling of vim and energy. Bonano is a drink for rich and poor, for sick or healthy, for man, woman and child—all the time.

CHAPTER XXV

SLIPPY Sheerness must have been scandalized that day and his comrade have acquired ground for many an uncharitable surmise. Kirkwood, however, was so fortunate as to gain the wharf before the employee there awoke to the situation. Otherwise, such is the temper of British petty officialdom, he might have detained the fugitive. As it was, Kirkwood surrendered his ticket and ran out into the street with his luck still a dominant factor in the race, for, looking back, he saw that Mrs. Hallam had been held up at the gate, another victim of British red tape. Her ticket read for Queensborough, she was attempting to alight one station farther down the line, and, while undoubtedly she was anxious to pay the excess fare, heaven alone knew why she would succeed in allaying the suspicions and resentment of the ticket taker.

"That's good for ten minutes' start," Kirkwood growled. "And it never occurred to me!"

Before the station he found two backs in waiting, with little to choose between them. Neither was of a type that did not seem to advertise its Victorian fashioning, and to neither was he harnessed an animal that deserved anything but the epithet of scow. Kirkwood took the nearest for no other reason than because it was the nearest and all but startled the driver of his box by offering double fare for a brisk pace and a simple service at the end of the ride. Suddenly he set forth his wants, jumped into the antiquated four wheeler and threw himself down upon a cushion, dusty cushions to hug himself over the jolts and bumps whatever English coach of railway directors it was that first ordained that tickets should be taken up at the end instead of the outset of a journey.

It was promptly made manifest that he had further cause for gratification. The cabby, recovering from his amazement, was playing an indefatigable whip and thereby eliciting a degree of speed from his superannuated nag that his fare had by no means hoped for, much less anticipated.

In a period of time surprisingly short Kirkwood saw, from fleeting glimpses of the scenery to be obtained through the rattling windows, that they were threading the outskirt of the town. Synchronously, whether by design or through actual inability to maintain it, the speed was moderated, and in the course of a few more minutes the cab stopped definitely.

Kirkwood clambered painfully out, shook himself together and the brushes out of his bones and looked back.

Aside from a slowly settling cloud of dust, the road ran clear as far as he could see—to the point, in fact, where the town closed in about it. He had won, at all events inasmuch as to him meant eluding the persecutor Mrs. Hallam. But to what end?

Abstractedly he tendered his lonely sovereign to the driver and without even looking at it examined the heavy weight of change into his pocket, an oversight which not only won him the awestruck admiration of the cabby, but entailed consequences it may be he little apprehended. It was with an abashed nod that he acquiesced in the man's announcement that he might arrange the boat for him. Accordingly the cabby disappeared, and Kirkwood continued to stare about him eagerly, hopefully.

He stood on the brink of the Thames estuary, there a possible five miles from shore to shore. From his feet almost a broad shingle beach sloped gently to the water.

On one hand a dilapidated picket fence inclosed the doorway of a fisherman's cottage, or, better, hovel—if it need be accurately described—at the door of which the cabby was knocking. Some little distance offshore a fishing boat, cut rigged and not more than twenty feet over all, was bobbing at her moorings, keen eyes searching into the wind, at which of which Kirkwood gave thanks, for his adventitious guide had served him well, if that boat were to be hired by any manner of personation.

But it was to the further reaches of the estuary that he gave more prolonged and most anxious heed, scanning narrowly what shipping was there to be seen. Far out a liner was riding the waves with serene contempt, making for the river's mouth and Tilbury dock. But a single sailing vessel of any notable tonnage was in sight, and when he saw her Kirkwood's heart became buoyant with hope, and he began to trouble with pensive eagerness, for he believed her to be the Althea.

There's no mistaking a ship brigantine rigged for any other style of craft that sails the seas.

Voices approaching brought him back to shore. He turned, resuming his mask of sanity, the better to counter with the owner of the cottage and boat, a heavy, keen eyed fellow, ungracious and truculent of habit and chary of his words, as he promptly demonstrated.

"I'll hire your boat," Kirkwood told him, "to put me aboard that brigantine off to seaward. We ought to start at once."

The fisherman shifted his gird of tobacco from cheek to cheek, grunted indifferently and swung deliberately on his heel, displaying a bull neck above a pair of heavy shoulders.

"Dirty weather," he croaked, facing back from his survey of the eastern skies before the American found out whether or not he should resent his insolence.

"How much?" Kirkwood demanded curtly, annoyed.

The man hesitated, scowling blackly at the heeling vessel momentarily increasing her distance from the shore. Then, with a crafty smile, "Two pun," he declared.

The American nodded. "Very well," he agreed simply. "Get out your boat."

The fisherman turned away to sham the notice of the whaling, large booted heels crunching toward one of the dories. To this he set his shoulder, shoving it steadily down the beach until only the stern was dry.

Kirkwood looked back for the last time, up the road to Sheerness. Nothing moved upon it. He was rid of a stern problem. He had a few pence over 10 shillings in his pocket and had promised to pay the man four times as much. He would have agreed to ten times the sum demanded, for the boat he must and would have. But he had neglected to conclude his bargain, to come to an understanding as to the method of payment, and he felt more than a little dubious as to the reception the fisherman would give his proposition, sound as he (Kirkwood) knew it to be.

In the background the cabby loitered, gnawed by insatiable curiosity. The fisherman turned, calling over his shoulder, "If you'd catch you vessel, come!"

With one final twinge of doubt—the task of placing this surly dog was anything but inviting—the American strode to the boat and climbed in, taking the stern seat. The fisherman shoved off.

In time the dory lay alongside the entomb, the fisherman with a guarded hand grasping the latter's gunwale to hold the two together. With some difficulty Kirkwood transhipped himself, landing asprawl in the cockpit and a tangle of cordage slippery with scales.

The skipper followed, with clumsy expertness bringing the dory's painter with him and hitching it to a ringbolt about the rudder head. Then, pausing an instant to stare into the east with somber eyes, he shipped the tiller and bent to the halyards. As the sail rattled up, dripping wildly, Kirkwood marked with relief, for it meant so much time saved, that it was already close noon.

But when at last the boom was thrashing overland and the halyards had been made fast to their cleats the fisherman again stood erect, peering distrustfully at the distant wall of cloud.

Then, in two breaths, "Can't do it," he decided. "Not at the price."

"Why?" Kirkwood stared despairingly after the brigantine, that was already drawn far ahead.

"Danger," growled the fellow—"wind."

At a loss completely, Kirkwood found no words. He dropped his head, considering.

"Not at the price," the sullen voice repeated, and he looked up to find the cunning gaze upon him.

"How much, then?"

"Five pun I'll have, no less, for riskin' my life this day."

"Impossible," I haven't got it."

In silence the man unspooled the tiller and moved toward the clouds.

"Hold on a minute."

Kirkwood unbuttoned his waist and, freeing the chain from his vestcoat buttonholes, removed his watch. He had abandoned them altogether. It had been designed to leave them as security for the 12 and had delayed starting the terms only for fear lest they be refused. Now, too late, he recognized his error. But surely, he thought, it should be apparent even to that low intelligence that the timepiece alone was worth more than the boat itself.

"Will you take them?" he offered.

"Take and keep them. Only set me aboard that ship!"

Deliberately the fisherman weighed the watch and chain in his broad, hard palm, eyes narrowing to mere slits in his bronzed mask.

"How much?" he asked slowly.

"Eighty pounds together. The chain alone cost me twenty."

The shifty, covetous eyes ranged from the treasure in his hand to the threatening, east. A puff of wind caught the sail and sent the boom athwartships like a mighty flail. Both men ducked instinctively to escape a braining.

"How do I know?" objected the skipper.

"I'm telling you. If you've eyes you can see," retorted Kirkwood savagely, seeing that he had erred in telling the truth. The amount he had named was too great to be grasped at once by this crude, cupidinous brain.

"How do I know?" the man repeated. Nevertheless he dropped watch and chain into his pocket, then, with a meaning grimace, extended again his hairy, grody palm.

"What?"

"Hand over th' two pun and we'll go."

"I'll see you hanged first!"

"Where ye go?" He pronounced his ultimatum, motioning Kirkwood to enter the boat.

The American turned, looking for the Althea or for the vessel that he believed bore that name. She was bearing the lightship when he found her, and as he looked a squall blurred the air between them, blotting the brigantine out with a smudge of rain. The effect was as if she had vanished, as if she were forever snatched from his grasp, and with Dorothy aboard her— heaven alone knew in what need of him!

Mute and blind with despair and wrath, he turned upon the man and caught him by the collar, forcing him out over the lip of the overhang. They were unavertly matched, Kirkwood for the slither, for strength came to him in the crisis, physical strength and address such as he had not dreamed were at his command. And the surprise of his onslaught proved an ally of unguessed potency. Before he himself knew it he was standing on the overhang and had shifted his hold to seize the fellow about the waist; then, lifting him clear of the deck and aided by the lurch of the entomb, he cast him bodily into the dory. The man, falling, struck his head against one of the thwart—a glancing blow that stunned him momentarily. Kirkwood himself dropped as if shot, a trailing reef point snapping his cheek until it stung as the boom thrashed overhead. It was as close a call as he had known. The knowledge sickened him a little.

Without rising he worked the painter loose and cast the dory adrift, then crawled back into the cockpit. No pang of compassion disturbed him as he abandoned the fisherman to the mercy of the sea. Though the fellow lay still, unaccountably thought the bottom of the dory, he was in no danger. The wind and waves together would carry the boat ashore. For that matter, the man was even then recovering, struggling to sit up.

Crunching to avoid the boom, Kirkwood went forward to the bows and, grasping the mooring cable, drew it in, slipping back into the cockpit to get a stronger purchase with his feet. It was a struggle. The boat pulled sluggishly against the wind, the cable heeling in jealousy. And behind him he could hear a voice bellowing inarticulate imprecations and knew that in another moment the fisherman would be at his oars.

Practically he tugged and tore at the slither rope, hauling with a will and a prayer. It gave more readily toward the end, but he seemed to have fought with it for ages when it last the anchor tripped and he got it in.

Immediately he leaped back to the stern, fitted in the tiller and, seizing the main-sheet, drew the boom in till the wind should catch in the canvas. In the dory the skipper, bending at his oars, was not two yards astern.

He was hard aboard when, the sail filling with a bang, Kirkwood pulled the tiller up, and the entomb slid away, a dozen feet separating them in a breath.

A yell of rage boomed down the wind, but he paid no heed. Careless alike of the dangers he had passed and those that yawned before him, he trimmed the sheet and stood away on the port tack, heading directly for the
